industrious : and the inference of an other; Ναεῖν γὰρ ἔστι χρεῖστον, ἢ οὐκ ἔχειν, mente aliquid agitare est potius, quam quiescere : That meditation is to be preferred before the mindes vacation. The reason is apparent, the soule (they say) growes bright with vse, and negotiation keeps it sound, whilst muffled in a non-imploiment it grows corrupt. For this cause with the Poet, Fungar vice cotis, I shall whet the wits of indisposed sluggs, and stirre vp dull inventions, and melancholly dispositions to a laudable exercise of their vacancie, and sequestration from serious implorments. Experience giues me to vnderstand, that excesses haue for the most part ill conclusions; therefore for an Antidote against lassitude

a restorative to satietie, for the recovery of the soules faculties, and bodies senses were solacing and spirit-refreshing recreations invented, which in themselves are nothing else but the exercise of Idleness. And to the end that every one might have Recreation agreeable to his temperament and naturall inclination, Art, which ever imitates Nature, affords the benefit of pleasing varietie. Varietie, Natures glory, the mindes contentment, the senses refreshing, and the hearts rejoycing, which many with restless feet, and wearisome wings pursue; is heerein brought home tendered to the hands of her friendly favourites, and about the rest dedicated and presented vnto your Highnesse.

To the Reader.

Standing the Authour considering with himselfe how the world having surfeited (vique ad nauleam) even of the abundance of Angels food, to the slighting, not onely of the hony and hony combe; but of Marrow, and Mannab, the Cornucopia and plentie of divine Writings: and how the most taking pleasure in vaine Pamphlets, Poesies, Play-bookes, and the like; (O sæcula tricis dedita plebeis, insanâ agitata phrenesi!) have not onely dulled many sharpe wits, but diverted hard Students from their goodly purposes; therefore at some vacant minutes, he strained his Invention to the accomplishing of that which heerein for a Noveltie is offered and tendered unto thee. It is not for himselfe that thus far hee waded into the depth of hidden Curiosities, but for thy sake (Courteous Reader;) that hee might by these New and pleasant Recreations, take up some of thy vacant howers, alienate thy thoughts from vanities meerely sinfull, or sports that by accident prooue snares

and evil; and to afford Lords and Ladies, Gentlemen, Gentlewomen, and young Schollars, as new Experiments, so matters of merriment and contentment.
It hath beene observed by the Poet, that Omne tulit punctum qui miscuit
vtile dulci.

The pricke and praise is gained from all
by mixing things pleasing with profitable. The Authour having been care-full of both, this Worke may happily bee courteously entertained by some, and find demerited commendation. How ever, if Industrie meet with Ingeniuitie, hee cannot (I hope) bee much condemned.

in the first Booke.

WHen you would find out any Conclusion grounded on the former Chapters, as to know what King was thought vpon in your minde, haue recourse vnto the first chapter. To tell any Nobleman, Knight Baronet, or Knight his name, and title of honour, then the partie must be referred to the second Chapter: so of all other Experiments. What is said of the vse of one Chapter, must bee vnderstood of all throughout the whole first Booke.

An Example for the vnderstanding of the first Chapt.

Suppose that your friend do think in his mind vpon the name of one of the Princes of England, & you are to diuine
and

and tel him what Prince or Princeſſe he thought vpon. Then open the Booke at the firſt Chapter, & bid your friend think vpon any name throughout the whole firſt chapter: for Example, ſuppoſe it to bee Queene Anne, pag. the firſt: on the left ſide you ſhall find 146, which ſheweth that ſhee was the wife of the 146 Prince or King, in the order of ſucceſſion, namely of K. James: thus Aurelius is found to be the ninth Prince, Brute the firſt, Will. the Conquerour the 123.&c.

Admit now that William the Conq. bee thought vpon, which is found in pag. 3. vnder the governing letter G, and the number 37 right againſt the Conquerour. That which you are to keepe in minde, is onely the page from whence the name of the party thought vpon is taken, which heere is 3; bid the partie thinking to keepe well in his mind the number right againſt the name, namely 37. then referre him to the page marked with the letter G. at the top thereof ( towards the end of this first Booke ) bid him to seeke this number vnder one of the 4. Quarters, noted by the letters, K. L. I. H. Having found it, demand in which quarter it is : If he say in the third quarter noted by the letter I; then referre him to the page I (at the top thereof ) and bid him the second time seeke the number so kept in mind : which being found againe, demand in which of the said quarters it is ; if hee say in the second quarter , marked with the letter D, there at D count the Alphabet over the numbers, and say 54. A. 52. B. 53. C. 37. D. The letter D falling on 37, you may safely conclude, that 37. was the number kept in minde. Seeke this 37 in the third page , whence it was taken , and on the left hand you shall find William the Conqueror, who was the man thought vpon.

How

How by the second Chapter you may tell a Noble man his Name, and Title of honour, though you never knew him, nor saw him before.

1. Note, that the name of any of the greater or lesser Nobilitie is to bee sought by the Sirname, and not by the Christian name.

2. If the name bee found in the second Chapter, (by the Alphabet) you may certainly tell him both his name, and title of honour, thus :

3. The partie having found out his name, bid him to keepe in minde the number which stands by the side of it; you your selfe must keepe in mind the page, and also the Letter which governes the said page, as for example : M governes from 1 to 15. R governes from 16 to 30. G governs from 31 to 45. and B from 46 to 60.

Admit that Robert Lord Dormore, Earle of Carnarvan demand his name of you, and you know him not; bid his Lordship by his Surname to finde out both Christian & Surname, (the names being alphabetically disposed;) Robert L. Dormore, Earle of Carnarvan being found, on the left hand the 24 page, bid his Honour to keepe in minde the number which stands by the side of his Honours name, which beeing 20, (vnknown to you;) keepe you in mind the foure and twentieth page, whence the name was taken, and likewise the governing letter of the sayd page, which is R.

Then referre his Lordship to the Page of Numbers Transposed, or Varied, marked at the top with the letter R, and bid him there to seeke the number, (20) kept in minde, which being found, demand in which quarter it is: if it bee sayd in the third quarter, governed by the Letter T. Then bid his

Ho-

New Recr

Honour to seeke the sayd number in the page governed by the Letter T, at the top of the said page; which being found, demaund the second time in which of the foure quarters it bee found: if it bee answered, in the first quarter governed by the Letter C, say the Alphabet ouer the said numbers: for C being the third Letter in the Alphabet, will end on the third number of the first line, viz. on 20: giving you to vnderstand, that 20 was the number first kept in mind: Seeke this number secretly in the 24 page, from whence it was taken, and you shall find Rob L. Dermore, E. of Carnarvan, &c.

Now by the seventh Chapter, to tell any man his Christian name, though you never saw him before.

Let him enter into the 7. Chapter, and seeke his Christian name by the Alphabetical Letter thereof, suppose it to it to bee Meredith, which is found in the 97 Page, vnder the governing letter G, which you that are to divine, must keepe well in minde; then bid him to think vpon the number which is placed right against his name, which heere is 35, turne you the Booke vnto the Numbers Transposed, or Varied, and the page G, vnder the page G, bid your friend to seeke for the number (35) kept in mind, which being found, demand in which of the foure quarters it is, and hee will say in the third, governed by the Letter F; therefore referre him the second time to seeke the same number (35) kept in minde, vnder the page I: it being found, demand the second time in which of the quarters it is, if it bee said in the first, governed by the Letter F; there count your Alphabet ouer the numbers, and say, A. 40. B. 39. C. 41. D. 42. E. 44. F. 35. F. falling on 35. you may safely conclude, that 35 was the number kept kept in minde : seeke this 35 in the 97 page, whence it was taken, and right against the same you shall find the name of your friend, viz. Meredith.

So doe in all other Experiments according to all the varieties specified throughout the Chapter of the whole first Booke.

Proposition

Number thought and doubled, after certaine numbers added, to tell one, without asking any question, the Remaines of the worke.

Bid one to thinke a thought, and double the same, and then adde any one, or many numbers, which may at last make an even number, which done, bid him cast away one halfe of the totall, and from the halfe remaying, to cast away the first thought, one halfe of the number or numbers added in vnto the worke, will alwayes remaine.

| Trebled, is                 | 54 |
| Cast away halfe, then it is | 27 |
| This halfe trebled is       | 81 |

Demaund the product , or totall, which being 81 ; part the same by 9, your quotient will be 9, which multiplied by 2, giveth the number of your first thought, viz. 18.

Proposition.

An odde number being thought, and trebled, the product being also added, keepe one in minde : If you cast away the greater halfe, and treble the lesser, and divide the product (given you) by 9, the quotient doubled, and an vnite added (for the 1 kept in minde) the totall will bee your first thought.

Example.

Thought is 157

Multiplied by 3,

The product is odde, 471

Cast away one halfe, there is 235  $\frac{1}{2}$

Multiplied by 3, it is 705

Demaund the product, which being 705, and given vnto you, divide the same by 9, the Quotient is 78, which multiplied by 2, and an Vnite added, the product is 157, your thought.

Proposition.

Treble the number thought, then demaund whether it be even or odde: If it be answered odde, adde an vnite, and keepe 1 in minde; then cast away halfe: treble this halfe, and demand whether it bee even or odde: if it bee

odde

odde the second time, adde an vnite
and keepe two in minde: If it be odde
both the first and second time, keepe three in minde. Cast away one halfe then demaund the totall remayning, e very nine in the remaines giveth 4 for your thought.

Example.

|                               |     |
|-------------------------------|-----|
| Thought                       | 29  |
| Trebled, is                   | 87  |
| Keepe 1 in minde, and adde 1. | 88  |
| Cast away halfe, then it is   | 44  |
| This halfe trebled is         | 132 |
| Halfe whereof is              | 66  |

Demaund the totall, which beeing given, divide the same by 9, you haue for your Quotient 7: which multipli ed by foure, and an vnite added, be cause it was odde the first time, mak eth 29 for your thought.

Examp

Example 2.

Let your thought bee 34
 Trebled, you haue 102

Demand whether it be euen or odd:
 if euen, cast away halfe, it is 51

Treble this halfe, as three times 51 is 153.

Demand the second time if it bee
 even or odde. If it be answered, odde;
 adde an vnite to make it euen, & keepe two in minde, it is 154: from which cast away halfe, the remaines is 72.

Demand the total remaining, which beeing 72, and given vnto you, divide the same in your minde, or otherwise by helpe of your penne, the Quotient will bee 8. Multiply the same by 4, (because every 9 giveth 4) and adde thereto 2, because it was odde the second time, the product will bee 34
 your thought.

A seventh way to finde out a number thought.

Proposition.

A thought doubled, and 4 added thereto, and the whole multiplied by 5, and 12 added to this totall: if from the same you subtract 32, (every article of the remaines, or) one tenth, giveth an vnite of the number thought.

| Adde 12 to this product, and it is, | 882 |

Demaund what the totall is: if it be said, 882, subtract in your minde 32, the remaines is 850: then from the remaines take one tenth, or cut off a figure, you haue 85 for your thought

An eighth way to finde out a number thought.

A thought trebled, and an vnite added thereto, if it be odd the first time, (for odde the first time keepe 1 in minde) and the halfe thereof trebled againe: If you diuide the product by 9, the Quotient doubled, and an vnite added thereto, bringeth foorth your first thought.

Example.

Let the number thought bee 55
which trebled, is 165

Demand whether it be even or odd, which heere is odde, therefore keepe one in minde, and bid the partie that thinketh to adde 1 to the same, which maketh 166: and from the same to cast away halfe, the rest is 83

Secondly, bid him treble this halfe, it is 349.

212 The second Booke of

Demand the totall, which given is 249. Divide the same in your minde, or otherwise, by 9. the Quotient is 27. Which doubled, and an Vnite added thereto, ( because it was odde the first time ) the totall will be 55, your thought.

Example 2.

|                        |      |
|------------------------|------|
| An even thought.       | 468  |
| Trebled, it is         | 1404 |
| Cast away halfe, it is | 702  |
| This halfe trebled is  | 2106 |

The Explanation.

The thought is 468, which trebled is 1404; halfe whereof is 702. This halfe 702 being trebled (as before) is 2106.

Demand the totall : answer will be made, 2106. Part the same by 9. the Quotient will be 234. which doubled with your first thought.

*A ninth way to find out a number
thought.*

I. An odde number.

Proposition.

Let a thought be trebled, and if it bee odde, an vnite added thereto; and for the vnite added, keepe one in your minde; then cast away one halfe from the whole, &c.

And secondly, treble this halfe, and if it bee odde, adde an Vnite thereto, keeping two in minde; and cast away
one halfe from the whole: Demanding the totall or product, which giuen you, if you part or divide the same by 9, the quotient multiplied by 4, and for odde the first time one added to the product, and for odde the second time two added to the product; and for odd both first and second time, three being added to the product, the totall at last will be your thought.

L. 4.

Ex-

Example.

Let your thought be an odde number, 235; this trebled is 705: demand if it bee even or odde, the answere is odde, put one to it, and keepe one in mind, the totall is 706: cast away halfe, the remaines is 353.

Secondly, bid the partie thinking to treble this halfe, it is 1059. Demand if it be even or odde, the answer will be, odd; therefore put one therto, and keepe two in mind, it is 1060. an even number; bid him then to cast away halfe, the remaines is 530.

Demand what the whole comes vnto, or how many nines can bee given in the same, which being 58, (for  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 530, is 58, and 8 remayning, which is of no value) multiply in your minde this 58 by 4, and for odde both first and second time, adde in 3, the product will be 235, your first thought.

Example.

Example 2. of an even number.

|---------------------------------------------------|---------------|
| Thought                                           | 76            |
| Trebled                                           | 228. Even. 1. |
| One halfe is                                      | 114           |
| That halfe trebled is                             | 342. Even. 2. |
| One halfe of that is                              | 171           |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ of 171 is                           | 19            |
| 19 multiplied by 4, giveth 76 your first thought. |               |

A tenth way to find out a number thought, without asking any question.

Bid one to thinke a number, and therto to put one halfe thereof, which if hee cannot doe (as being odde) let him adde the greater halfe to his thought, and for the same keepe 3 in minde, to bee subtracted from the whole, or the product at last.

Secondly, to the former thought and the halfe thereof added thereto, the partie thinking adde one halfe of the totall againe, which if hee cannot doe, it being odd the second time, keepe two in your minde to bee at last subtracted, and adde the greater halfe to this totall.

Thirdly, bid the partie to double his first thought, and take it out of the whole summe, and cast away halfe, one halfe from the remaines, 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10 times or more, vntill you bring him to an vnite, of which hee cannot take halfe. But when hee cannot take halfe, as of 9; bid him cast away one, and then reiect halfe, it is 4. halfe of 4. is 2. halfe of 2 is 1, an Vnite.

To find the Dividend or number divided, ascend in your minde after the order of Geometrical Progression, as here:

Divisions. 10. 9. 8. 7. 6. 5. 4. 3. 2. 1.

Progression numbers. 1024. 512. 256.
128. 64. 32. 16. 8. 4. 2.

If you take halfe foure times vntill you come to an vnite, the number of Progreſſion thus parted by 2 was 16.

For halfe of 16 is 8; halfe of 8 is 4; halfe of 4 is 2; halfe of 2 is 1.

Note. Multiply this your Dividend by 4, the product ſhalbe your thought.

Exception. But if your thought was odde, that you could not take halfe of it at the firſt, ſubtract 3 from this Product, and the reſt will bee your thought.

Finding an odde halfe the ſecond time, keepe 2 in minde to be ſubtracted, as before.

If the firſt and the ſecond time you meet with odde halfes, keepe five in minde, to bee ſubtracted from the product of your Dividend multiplied by 4. (as afore is declared) the remaines will be your thought.

Example

Example 1.

Of an even number thought, wherein falleth out no odde halfe.

|------------------------------|------|
| Let the number thought bee   | 64   |
| Halfe as much added is       | 32   |
| The totall is                | 96.  |
| Halfe as much added, is      | 48   |
| The totall is                | 144. |
| Double the thought 64, it is | 128. |
| Subtract the same from       | 144. |
| The remaines for Dividend is | 16   |
| Cast away halfe, it is       | 8    |
| Cast away halfe, it is       | 4    |
| Cast away halfe, it is       | 2    |
| Cast away halfe, it is       | 1    |

Heere are foure Divisions by 2, or you cast away halfe foure times: therefore reckon the Divisions contrariwise, vpwards, & count the first 2, the second 4, the third 8, the fourth 16, &c. so are you fallen vpon your number divided, called the Dividend, that that is to say, 16. Multiply in your mind this 16 by 4, the product will be your number thought, viz 64.

Example. 2.

Of an odde number thought, wherein is an odde halfe the first time.

Let the number thought be 37
Adde halfe as much the first time, which because you cannot, keepe three in mind, and adde the greater halfe vn-
to it, which is 19

The totall will be 56

Adde the second time 28. which added to 56. is in all 84

Double your thought, and subtract:
the thought doubled is 74

74 subtracted from 84, resteth 10.
(This 10 is your Dividend.)

Bid the partie that thought cast away halfe, the remaines is 5. Bid him cast away halfe againe; the answer will be

be hee cannot: then bid him cast away an Vnite, and keepe one in mind: (this Vnite in your minde must be added in againe in the right and proper place to finde out the Dividend) and after that cast away halfe: as halfe of 4 (one being rejected) is 2. Bid him cast away halfe againe the third time, and the remaines will be 1 an vnite. Now if you bid him cast away halfe againe, he will answer, that hee cannot doe it, because hee is come to an vnite, which being rejected, the remaines will be a cipher: now you are to cast away halfe but untill you come to an vnite.

But when in casting away halfe you meet with an odde number before you come to an Vnite, keepe well in your mind in which of the Divisions it happened to be odde, whether the first, second, third, fourth, or fifth. Heere it was in the first. For halfe of 10 was 5: which falling out to be odde, you did necessarily cast away one, and the remaines was 4 to divide by 2, or to cast away halfe therefrom.

Example.

10. halfe 10 5. odde. reject 1. halfe
5. 2. halfe 2 is 1.

The Divisions are you see 3; therefore ascend vpwards by Geometricall Progression thus: 2. 5. 10. (and not as before 2. 4. 8.) otherwise you cannot come to the true Dividend, which was 10. Wherefore from 2 proceed in your mind to 4, where falling out formerly odde, adde the vnite cast away, you haue 5; which doubled giueth precisely your Dividend. 10.

Multiply this Diuidend in your minde by 4, the Product is 40, from which subtract 3 kept in minde at the first (because you met with an odde halfe) the remaines will bee 37 your thought.

Example. 3.

Of an odde number thought, wherein are odde halfe both times.

Let your thought be 107

Add 1 as much vnto it, if you cannot,
adde the greater halfe 54. and keepe in minde 3. the totall of both is 161

Adde halfe as much vnto it, if not,
adde the greater halfe 81. and keepe in mind 2. The totall of both is 244

Your thought doubled is 214. which subtracted, resteth 28. the Dividend.

1 Cast away halfe, there resteth 14

2 Cast away halfe, there resteth 7.

3 Cast away halfe. Answer, I can not, because it is odde. I reply, you must cast away an vnite, and then cast away halfe, it is 3

4 Cast away halfe; answer, I can
not. Reply, Cast away 1, and then cast away halfe, rest 1.

The divisions are 4. Now because at the 2 last divisions you reiected an vnite

vnite before you could cast away halfe, therefore you must adde them in againe thus, saying in your mind, not 2. 4. 8. 16. &c. but 3. where your vnite is againe added in, then 7. where your other vnite is againe added in; then 14. and last of all 28. so are you fallen vpon the right Dividend. Multiply the same by 4. saying, 4 times 28 is 112. Subtract 3 for the first odde halfe, and 2 for the second odde halfe, which 5. you kept in minde for the two odde halfe, and say, 5 from 112. there resteth 107. your thought.

Cast away halfe, I cannot ; but I cast away an vnite, the remaines is 4. Cast away halfe of 4, the remaines is 2. Cast away halfe, the remaines is 1.

The Partitions or Divisions beeing 2, ascend in your minde thus ; 2. 4. Hecceunto adde the vnite rejected at the first, you haue 5 for your Dividend.

5 Your Dividend multiplied by 4, giveth 20. from which subtract 3 & 2, which is 5 (because you met with two odde halfes, and added in two greater halfes, and for the first kept three in mind, and for the second 2, which maketh 5) which taken from 20, the remaines will be 15, your thought.

| The totall therefore is odde. The totall being odde, the Conclusion is, the first man thought Even, the second man thought odde. |     |                |

Four men thinking on foure Digit numbers, (which are from 1 to 9) to tell what the first, second, third, and fourth man thought.

This conclusion findeth out any number thought vnder 10000.

Foure persons standing in ranke, admit the first thinke 8, the second 7, the third 6, and the fourth 5.

Let the first man double the number of his thought, and add 5 thereto, then multiply the whole by 5, & adde 10 to the product, noting the totall.

Bid the second man demand of the first man his totall number, which being giuen him, let him adde vnto the same his thought, and giue the totall to the third man.

Then bid the third man to affix or set his thought by the number giuen him, and put it one place towards the right hand, and giue the totall thereof to the fourth man.

Last of all, bid the fourth man set his thought thereby, a place yet to the right hand, in the first place, and adde the

the number of 25 vnto it; that done, demand of him the totall number, which being ginen you, subtract out of it 3525, the number remaining will discover the foure mens thoughts.

The Digit on the left hand, sheweth the first mans thought; the next Digit towards the right hand, is for the second mans thought; the figure in the second place representeth the third mans thought, and the figure in the first place, giueth the fourth mans thought.

Example

1 The first mans thought 8, which being doubled is 16, and 5 added thereto, is 21, which multiplied by 5, is 105. Whereunto adde 10, the whole is

115

2 Secondly, let the second man adde in 7 (his thought) it stands thus

3 Let the third man set his thought a place to the right hand thus:

4 Let the fourth man place his thought a place yet to the right hand thus. 1226.5

How by the Verse following you may cast away every tenth Number.

There being 15. of one sort, and 15. of another.

How With three Pots, of 8. 5. 3. Pints to part 8. Pints of Wine into two equall parts.

Pots    A.   B.   C.

Pintes 8.   5.   3.

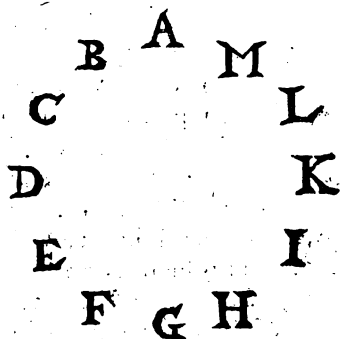

Empty A into B, B into C, C into A, B into C, A into B, B into C: So in (B the measure of 5 Pintes) there will remaine 4 Pintes.

Then empty C into A, and C will have nothing, but A will likewise have 4 Pintes.

To finde out the howre any one should thinke in his minde eitherto rise, or to goe to rest.

This

This Circle divided into 12 equal parts by the letters A. B. C. D. E. F. G. H. I. K. L. M. signifieth 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. the howres of the Artificiall day, from Sunne rising to Sunne setting; also the twelue howres of the day, and the 12. howres of the night, the Naturall Day.

A, signifieth 1 a clocke, B, 2 a clocke, C, 3 of the clocke, G, 7 of the clocke, H, 8 of the clocke, and M, 12 of the clocke.

N. O. desires to know the hower he shall thinke in his minde to goe to his rest. Bidde him to thinke vpon the howre, which suppose to be a 11, then to point vpon one of these 12 Letters, where hee will begin to make his account: Suppose he shall say at G; which from A, is the seuenth houre. Adde 13 to the number which G doth represent, viz. 7, the totall will bee 20. Say then unto N. O. that he must beginne at G, and tell from G towards A, reckning round about untill hee rest vpon the number of 20. calling G the number next to E at he thinks in his minde to take his rest; viz. 12, F 13, E 14, D 15, C 16, B 17, A 18, M 19, L 20.

20 ending at L, and L representing the 11 howre, you may safely conclude that N. O. thought to take his rest at 11 of the clocke at night.

which you rest one, finde the houre of Day or Night, which it representeth in this Table, vnder the title of houres represented.

Example.

Ending on A. the first houre was thought vpon : ending on B. the 2 hoare, ending on C. and recking 16. from your thought you shall fall on a letter betweene A. and M. which suppose I. it represents 9. in the Table,

Magneticall Experiments.

How by the Magnet, or Loadstone to give vertue to a knife to take up a needle.

Whet or glasse the knife to make it cleane and bright, to receiue the ver-tue of the stone, which being capped draw your knife softly on the North Cap (which is the strongest) from the Haft to the point, on both sides thereof, as also on the back and edge, it hath drawne vertue and efficacy from the Magnet; so that if you lay a needle to the point of your knife, or cast it into a glasse or Cup of any liquor, it will demonstrate the attractive power thereof, by holding it at the point, like a new lover that is loath to depart.

To

To take away the attractive vertue from any knife touched with the Magnet.

Cut Onions or gariike therewith.
Or thrust the knife vpon the point of the stone that is contrary to that which it was touched withall: as if the North cap gaue vertue, the South cap or end will take it away: or if the South first gaue vertue, the North point will take it off againe, by sliding your knife softly vpon the contrary cappe, from the poynt of the knife towards the haft, &c.

*To make a needle of a Sun-diall
to fly vp and downe circularly.*

Hold the Sun-diall or compasse leuell with the Horizon, apply the North or South poynt to the Sun-diall, holding it ouer the same: as you mooue your hand round, so wil the needle follow the Loadstone in your hand.

Apply the South end of your stone to the needle of the Sun-diall, touch'd with the North poynt, and it will fly away: so the North end of the stone, will make the South end of the needle to shift it selfe from the touch or embracement thereof.

How by helpe of the Magnet to cause iron knives to turne round upon the poynt of a neede or sharpe bodkin.

Prepare two knives somewhat neere of an equall weight, that the one may counterpoize the other: cut a small stick about an inch and halfe in length, and make the one end blunt, and the other sharpe, or small at the poynt, and tower square; fasten one of your knives points in the blunt end of your sticke, and fasten the other in like manner in the opposite or contrary side, put the harts of your knives so fir

In as by putting the sharpe end of the sticke on a needles poynt or bodkin, your knives being poyzed, cannot fall.

Put them inward or outward, vntill by practise you shall perceiue them to incline almost to a leuell with the Horizon : for then are they aptest by vertue of the Magnets vertue to bee drawen about vpon their center, the needle. If you keepe the Magnet within your Handkerchiefe in your hand, so that it doe not appeare, the experiment will seeme the more illustrious and rare.

When the knives are thus fixed to the sides of the sticke, you may put the point of the sharpe end of the stick on the brim of a glasse full of beare, or wine and the knives will not fall, or faile to shew you a conclusion somewhat strange.

278. The second Booke of

*To make two Needles run at rille
in a Basen of water.*

Cut two small corks foure square, about the thicknesse of a quill, thrust the first needle through the one, and the second needle through the other cork; And let both corks bee alike, touch the point of one needle with the North end of the Loadstone, and the other needles point with the South end of the stone: Cast them (thus touched by the Magnet) into the Basen of water, they will though slowly at the first, march on somewhat furiously at the last, and most exactly strike poynt against point.

C A P. 17.

To cause 3. knives being placed triangularwise, to beare up a Glasse full of water or wine, so that neuer a point of the 3. knives shall touch the table, nor the glasse fall, or totter.

1. Take vp one knife in your left hand hand with the edge towards your right.

2. Take vp another in your right hand with the edge toward the left, holding with your left hand them both immoueable.

3. Take vp the third knife in your right hand, with the point towards you, and the edge directed to the left hand.

4. Let the first knife rest vpon this third, and this third bee aboue the second, resting vpon the same; the three knives thus placed will represent a triangle. Place the glasse of liquor vpon them, they will stand firmly, the hafts being not to be lifted vp by the weight of your hād on the points of the knites.

C A P. . 18.

To cause water ( contrary to the nature thereof ) to ascend.

Prepare a Bason with a pint of water in it, or thereabouts, then take an earthen pot or Iugge with a round belly (fittest for this seruice) and light a peece of paper, cast it into the Iugge flaming, then turne quickly the mouth of the Iugge downe-ward, and set it on the middest of the Balon of water; it will sucke vp all the water, if it bee not more then it can receiue and containe within the belly thereof.

C A P. 19.

To carry a Iugge or earthen Pot, sticking without any thing vnto the palme of your hand.

Take a peece of paper, set it on fire, and cast it flaming into the mouth of the Iugge, presently clap the palme of your hand on the mouth of the said Iugge or Pot, not hollow, but plaine and smooth; the Iugge will not fall from your hand, but you may walke many paces, and carry the same sticking vnto to the palme of your hand, vnlesse by violence you plucke it away.

C A P. 20.

*To breake a sticke placed on the brims of two glassees, and not breake
the glassees.*

Place the glassees on a smooth stone of an equall height, and put the sticke vpon them; then take a batton or cud-gell, and therewith strike vpon the middest of the sticke perpendicularly or downe-right: so may you breake
the sticke, and not hurt the glassees.

C A P. 21.

Secrets of Writing, &c.

How Letters written in paper, are only apparent by casting dust thereon.

Diffolue Goats fat with a little gum
of the Turpentine tree, rubbe the paper with this liquor, and wash it ouer, and so keepe it a while ; then when you will declare your mind therein-vnto any one put the paper ( washed ouer with this fat ) on the Table, take a sharpe peece of iron or Steele or a pen made thereof, and write your mind in letters and words on the backe side of the paper, the signes or letters of fat will bee imprinted on the Table, send this, which being intercepted, will neither by fire nor water bee visible, but by casting thereon the dust of the earth, &c.

To make White Letters to appeare on a blacke peece of paper.

Beate both the yolke and white of an egge well together, vntill it bee liquid like writing inke, write your mind therewith on paper, suffering it to drye ; then wash ouer your paper with some blacke colour such as

Print-

Printers inke is, and put it by vntill both bee drye. Then take your knife and scrape ouer the superficies of the paper, the letters formerly written will come forth, and whites appeare in their roome.

*To Write in parchment, and the letters not to bee
scene, &c.*

Assoone as you haue written in parchment, hold it to a candle or the heate of the fire, and it will shrivell together, and runne into it selfe in such wise as not a word scarce can be read; when you would haue it legible, put it in a wet or moist place, or sprinkle it gently with water, and it will extend in length againe.

To Write letters or Characters that Will soone vanish.

Take aquavitæ, and charcole, or the gumme of camphire burnt to a coale,
and

and write therewith, the powder of a touchstone will rubbe it cleane out.

2. Take thin filings of Steele and bring them to powder, grinding vpon a marble stone with aquafortis, whereunto adde a little liquid pitch, or the gumme of the Turpentine tree burnt to powder, to make it the more blacke, write herewith, and in time it will vanish and goe out.

How invisible letters over a while will bee visible.

Write on copper with the iuice of an orange, over a while the letters will appeare greene.

To get out and deface the writings or blots vpon parchment.

Take a pensill and wash the place or the parchment with Aquafortis and the inke will come out.

To make an old writing appear faire.

Take galls and boyle them in wine,
and wash the writing therewith.

To take the Impression of any seale.

Melt a little brimstone, casting in some ceruse or white lead, put this mixture on the seale, strengthening it with a small peece of paper, a little bigger then the impression is, being cold take it off, and you shall find the print
of the seale thereon.

How to write a Letter secretly, that cannot easily bee discovered or suspected.

1. Write your mind at large on one side of the paper with common inke, and on the other side with milke, that which you would haue secret; and when you would make the same legible, hold that side which is written with inke to the fire, and the milky letters will shew blemish on the other side.

2. Rule two papers of one bignesse with lines of an equall distance, make the one full of glasse-windowes, through which you must write your mind vpon the second paper, then fill vp the spaces with some other words at your pleasure: but if all were made to hang together in good sense it would carry the lesse suspicion. Each friend must haue one of these cut papers to read all such letters, for without the paper it will trouble a good De cipherer to read the Letter.
