at the Bull Hotel, Rochester, on SATURDAY Evening, December 27th, at half-past 8 o'Clock precisely. The Soirees of M. Lassaigne have been repeatedly honoured with the presence of the most distinguished members of the Aristocracy, also of the most eminent gentlemen of the medical profession, in the metropolis, and of all the representatives of the London Press, without one voice having been raised against the marvellous effects of M. Lassaigne's experiments, and fairness of performance. So many deceptions having been practised on the public on similar occasions, M. Lassaigne respectfully calls the attention of the nobility of Chatham, Rochester, Strood, Canterbury, &c. &c., to his general programme, containing numerous extracts from the London Press, relating to his Soirees.
